What is FLEX?

Flexible Enhanced Learning (FLEX) consists of a longitudinal series of courses (MEDD 419/429/449) in Years 1,2 and 4 of the UBC MD curriculum of the undergraduate medical program. FLEX provides students with opportunities to explore individual scholarly interests and enhanced learning opportunities in the broad context of medical training.

FLEX activities occur on dedicated afternoons (called "half-days") and/or dedicated full weeks ("block time", where students are engaged full-time in FLEX - i.e., there is no other curriculum scheduled).

Applicant Qualifications

Applicants must have:

- an active UBC faculty or post-doctoral fellow appointment for the specified teaching period (or be eligible to obtain a UBC faculty teaching appointment)
- relevant experience with scholarship and scholarly work
- experience as an educator
- a commitment to community engagement in medical education
- effective interpersonal skills and an ability to work well with others
- experience facilitating small groups
- high standards of ethical and professional behaviour
- knowledge of MD undergraduate education
- access to a computer with camera/mic and a good internet connection

For Returning Applicants:

Positions in FLEX can be renewed on an annual basis.

MEDD 419 Course Components

MEDD 419 consists of the following components:

COMPONENT	PERIOD	DESCRIPTION
Foundations of Scholarship (FoS)	September to February (Monday afternoons)	The FoS component consists of modules, small group sessions, OPTIONAL Q&A with the Content Expert and Workshops. This component aids in skill development in methods of scholarship and in supporting aptitudes. It is important to recognize that, coming into medical school, students will have different abilities and expertise in aspects of topics taught in the FoS component of the course, but they should appreciate that the aim here is to provide everyone with a foundational understanding of approaches to rigorous scholarship. FoS topics include: • Scholarship and Learning Goals • Intro to Study Designs & Quantitative Research • Statistical Literacy for Physicians • Quantitative Observational Studies • Critical Appraisal of the Literature • EBM (Diagnosis and Screening; RCTs, Systematic Reviews) • Qualitative Research Design • Patient-Oriented and Participatory Research • Program Evaluation and CQI • Principles of Project and Research Design • Research Ethics and Responsible Conduct of Research • Knowledge Translation
FLEX Half Days	March to mid-April	Students will have dedicated afternoons to develop their project plans with prospective Activity Supervisor(s), including identifying the need for ethics approval(s), scope of the literature review (required for all activities) and a needs assessment (if necessary). These project plans are submitted for review to Advisors who determine whether students have appropriately outlined how the activity(ies) the students have selected to pursue during FLEX Block time will help them achieve their learning goals and objectives.
FLEX Block Time	Late April to early June (Full time)	During this six-week block students are fully engaged in their FLEX activities. No other curriculum is running at this time, allowing students the opportunity to focus exclusively on their FLEX scholarly activities. Students end the year by completing a Summative Portfolio Folder where they submit documents detailing what they have learned during their time in FLEX and how their experience ties into their greater learning.

Role and Responsibilities

A) OVERALL

- Provide longitudinal mentorship for assigned group of 8 students engaged in FLEX course and activities.
- Provide students with ongoing formative feedback, as required.
- Act as a scholarly guide for students and as a resource for self-directed learning.
- Communicate directly with FLEX Site Director(s) about any issues with students (academic performance, issues arising from activities, professionalism, etc.).

B) FACULTY DEVELOPMENT (SKILLS DEVELOPMENT AND TRAINING)

- New FLEX Advisors will be paired up with a "mentor" who will work alongside them as they navigate the processes of the FLEX course (mentorship can consist of 1:1 meetings, peer observations, and other tools to support the teaching faculty)
- Attend FLEX Advisor Orientation(s) and mandatory scheduled Advisor meetings (the expectation is that all advisors will attend these meetings where they can). All sessions will be delivered virtually.
- Successfully complete appropriate ongoing faculty development activities (including modules).
- Seek support from FLEX Site Director(s), as required, as part of ongoing faculty development.
- Provide ongoing feedback to FLEX course directorship about what is working well and areas that need improvement, in support of ongoing CQI (continuous quality improvement) initiative taking place in medical undergraduate program.

C) STUDENT SUPPORT

Small Group Sessions (FoS from September to February)

- Facilitate a group of 8 students in the discussion of FoS topics and evaluation of journal articles and other scholarly activities in a small group setting.
- Guide students to achieve weekly Foundations of Scholarship (FoS) objectives.
- · Work with students to refine learning interests, identify learning goals, and develop appropriate learning plans.
- Provide formative feedback to students.
- Complete Workplace Based Assessment (WBA) forms.
- Monitor student attendance and report any absences.

Small Group Sessions (FLEX from March to June)

- Monitor student attendance at scheduled Small Group Sessions and report any absences to the respective FLEX Site Director(s).
- Facilitate peer mentorship within small group setting.
- Meet with the students at scheduled Small Group Sessions to communicate important deadlines/deliverables.

Check-In

- Meet with students during defined 'check-in' period to monitor progress and communicate important deadlines/deliverables. Meetings can be by phone, Zoom or Skype.
- Provide feedback to students with respect to their development of skills in reflective practice.
- Summarize discussion points to provide actionable narrative feedback for student reference.

Project Plans/Activities

- Support students as they identify learning goals and objectives, develop project plans and select appropriate FLEX activities (may include helping student identify potential project artefacts that could be developed).
- Approve student FLEX activities and ensure students register for approved activities.
- Ensure students apply for research ethics review of their FLEX activities, if required.

D) ASSESSMENT

Note: You will be assessing different students than those in your Advising Group.

- Monitor the completion of student tasks by stated deadlines and report any non-completion to the respective FLEX Site Director(s).
- Evaluate the work presented by assigned group of students in their FLEX Summative Portfolio Folder (SPF) using provided assessment criteria.
- Complete and submit mandatory assessment forms and grading by stated deadline.

Types of Assessment used in MEDD 419

Formative: a) Check-In; b) Small Group Sessions

Summative: a) Workplace Based Assessment (WBAs are used to assess performance in Small Group Sessions)

b) FLEX Project Plan (FPP) approvals

c) assessment of Summative Portfolio Folders (SPFs)

Note: After the end of MEDD 419, FLEX Advisors will be asked to distribute any Activity Supervisor Feedback submitted for their students.

Assessment of Teachers by Learners

As in all other parts of the UGME, Advisors in FLEX are assessed by students and receive feedback on their performance. Advisors who receive assessments of concern may be invited to meet with the appropriate Course or Site Directors, recommended to attend faculty development, and/or may not be invited to be an advisor in the future.

Compensation in MEDD 419

For those eligible to be paid for teaching — Teaching in FLEX is compensated at 1.5 units per hour (the extra 0.5 units per hour is meant to compensate for events/tasks such as attending meetings, doing prep and administrative work, corresponding with students, completing WBAs, etc.) per the UBC Faculty of Medicine Clinical Faculty Compensation Terms for Teaching in the MD Undergraduate and Postgraduate Programs. Below is a breakout of specific tasks in MEDD 419:

TEACHING EVENT	FREQUENCY IN MEDD 419	COMPENSABLE HOURS	DETAILS
FoS Small Group Session (Sept to Feb)	9 (Term 1) 3 (Term 2)	13.5 hours (Term 1) 4.5 hours (Term 2)	1.5 hours per Small Group Session - facilitate a group of 8 students in the discussion of FoS topics and scholarly activities related to week's topic
WBA 1:1 Discussions	1 (Term 1)	1.5 hrs (Term 1)	Advisors discuss WBAs with students before submitting forms
Check-Ins / WBA 1:1 Discussions	1 (Term 2)	4 hours	Contact with students individually or as a group (as needed) via email or Zoom meeting or in-person meeting and documenting important discussion points/suggestions for students
FLEX Project Plan (FPP) Review/ Approvals	1 (Term 2)	5 hours	Review, approve and grade all FLEX Project Plans (FPPs) - including asking students to submit revisions
Small Group Session (during FLEX block)	1 (Term 2)	3.5 hours	Comprises Small Group work PLUS extra time for longitudinal work with students (e.g. emails, providing follow up from this small group session (if required), etc.)
Assessment of FLEX Summative Portfolio Folders (SPF)	1 (Term 2)	16 hours	Summative assessment of 8 (eight) FLEX Summative Portfolio Folders at 2 hours/student

Where to apply to teach in FLEX

Apply HERE (please see more info about opportunities in other years of FLEX in Teaching Opportunities)

NOTE: The course is organized in such a way that faculty can simultaneously be involved in more than one FLEX course at the same time (e.g. a MEDD 449 FLEX Advisor may opt to also be a FLEX Advisor in MEDD 419 and/or MEDD 429).

For those who are considering being advisors in more than one FLEX course at the same time, we have prepared a one-page overview of events/deadlines for FLEX Advisors by course (see APPENDIX - FLEX 2024-2025 ONE-PAGE SCHEDULE). Detailed course schedules will be available to advisors and students at the start of the school year.
